

“We need the best, safest, most secure system to conduct voting”

-Ion Sancho

New Yorkers for Verified Voting presents

Ion Sancho

Election integrity activist, Florida Election Supervisor, and featured in the film “Hacking Democracy”

September 29, 2007

7:30 PM

404 Plant Science, Tower Road
Cornell University, Ithaca, NY

The public is cordially invited

Ion Sancho, Supervisor of Elections for Leon County, Florida is one of the few election officials around the country who have challenged electronic voting machine vendors.

In 2005, Ion allowed a test which successfully demonstrated that Diebold election equipment could be easily hacked. This demonstration of dramatic security problems with electronic voting machines can be seen in the documentary film “Hacking Democracy”.